

Getting Ready For The Heating Season

A Publication Of The Missouri Public Service Commission

Consumers should take steps now as the heating season nears. Did you know that a do-it-yourself home energy audit can detect problems that may, when corrected, save significant amounts of energy over time.

Take Steps NOW To Get Ready For Winter

Examine ways to cut down on energy usage. Contact your utility company for home energy audits and suggestions to make homes and businesses more energy efficient. Have the furnace checked and tuned-up, if needed. Replace filters each month if they are dirty.

Identify safe measures to keep homes and businesses energy efficient. Caulk and place weatherstripping on doors and windows that leak air. Add attic insulation if necessary. Contact your utility company, some customers may be eligible for weatherization assistance.

You may want to talk to your local utility company about a "budget" or "level" billing plan. These plans allow customers to pay equal monthly payments on their accounts. In addition, many Missouri gas and electric companies have other programs to assist their customers. In most cases, companies will try to work with you to avoid disconnections.

Since 1977, the Public Service Commission has required heat-related utility companies to adhere to its Cold Weather Rule, which requires utilities to help customers maintain heat-related service during the winter under certain circumstances. Utilities and the PSC can also provide information on financial assistance programs available to consumers.

Facts About Natural Gas Pricing

The Missouri Public Service Commission has the authority to review how natural gas utilities purchase their gas. The commission is very limited in what it is authorized to do when natural gas prices go up. Wholesale natural gas prices are determined in an open, competition-based market. The commission does not regulate the price of wholesale natural gas which is sold to the local natural gas company who provides you with the service.
